FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The meeting between the Sir George Williams University administration and the union representing the Library employees broke down yesterday when the union team told the conciliator that it did not have a mandate to negotiate, only to demand University acceptance of its position on the outstanding issues. Notably, those are promotion and transfer; the rights of management; and union security. The union refused to consider new offers made by the University.

Workers who continue to assist the Library to provide service are being subject to rising harassment such as challenges outside their apartment, threatening phone calls and breaking into mail boxes.
